

Number of a building / house

Building / house numbering may vary from place to place, even within cities. Obviously there are also many differences between countries (e.g. odd numbers on one side, even numbers on the other; or simply a sequential numbering starting on one side and ending on the other side). Some houses may not be numbered at all, e.g. in the United Kingdom and Ireland, where some houses are identified by a name rather than a number.
